Levels of Testing in Software Testing - Guru99

UNIT TESTING, also known as COMPONENT TESTING, is a level of software testing where individual units / components of a software are tested. The purpose is to validate that each unit of the software performs as designed. A unit is the smallest testable part of any software. It usually has one or a few inputs and usually a single output.

Unit Testing - SOFTWARE TESTING Fundamentals

This testing begins with unit testing, followed by tests of progressively higher-level combinations of units called modules or builds. 2: Top-down integration. In this testing, the highest-level modules are tested first and progressively, lower-level modules are tested thereafter.
